Exploring Your Options
Department of Computer Science
Open House
Saturday, April 8, 2006
10:00 AM – 4:00 PM

The Department of Computer Science Open House will introduce high school and community college students to the exciting opportunities available at the University of Houston. All students, parents, alumni, and friends of the department are invited to explore current labs, class projects, and research projects to get an idea of where a computer science degree might lead. So take a look and bring your inquisitiveness. Our faculty and students will be available to answer any questions.

Where and When

The Open House will be at the Department of Computer Science on the fifth floor of the Philip G. Hoffman Building on the University of Houston main campus.

Demonstrations, exhibits, and student participation booths will be throughout the fifth floor. Doors are open from 10:00 AM to 4:00 PM on Saturday, April 8, 2006. Come early or anytime during the day. About two hours will be required to see all the demonstrations. Advance registration is not required except for teams participating in the programming contest (details below). Come individually or organize a group from your school or college.

What there is for you?

You will explore the opportunities of computer science with faculty and current students. Research and class projects will be demonstrated with some opportunity for participation. You will answer questions about the demos to be eligible for prizes based on best answers. You can discuss entrance requirements and curriculum options with a faculty member. Your school team can enter a programming contest where the winners will receive tuition scholarships and special rewards. Visit the following web site for programming contest details.
